

The CuSAG Student Support Fund

The Cultural Systems Analysis Group (CuSAG) is an applied research service and training unit in the Department of Anthropology at the University of Maryland College Park. The purpose of the CuSAG Student Support Fund (hereafter referred to as “the Fund”) is to broaden student participation in CuSAG activities, particularly students from economically disadvantaged backgrounds. Student support is sought in a range of CuSAG research training and service activities, such as the following:

- Support for students participating in CuSAG health determinants research in the US.
- Support for students participating in CuSAG health and social program planning implementation, and evaluation activities in the US.
- Support for students participating in CuSAG health determinants research in the Caribbean.
- Support for students participating in CuSAG health and social program planning implementation, and evaluation activities in the Caribbean.
- Support for US-Caribbean internship (service) exchange program.
- Support for US-Caribbean student exchange program.

Support to be provided would include, but is not limited to:

- International travel
- Local travel
- International room and board
- Tuition, books, and/or other fees
- Event and tour tickets
